High Wages to January 1 to be Paid—Expect Increase in Pay in Envelopes on March 14—Parcel Post and Cards to Bear Brunt of Increases.

Employees of the Kingston post office department will receive a total increase of about $18,000 per year as a result of the passage of the postal employees' bill, just signed by

According to the terms of the bill, the increase in pay is retroactive to January 1, so that on March 11, a employees will receive in addition to their regular stipend, the full amount of the increase for January and February. The Kingston post office department has about sixty

The increase in salaries will be met by an increase in the cost of mailing picture post cards, which hereafter will be two cents instead of a cent. The only card to go through the mails for one cent will be the regular one cent card sold by the government. The new schedule of rates will be as follows:

Increased rates will fall heavily on parcel post users. Existing rates will be continued, but there will be a two cent service charge added to every package and there will be a slight levie on special services such as insurance and money orders. It is expected that there will be a million dollar increase in the

While the new bill provides for increases in pay amounting to 68 millions, the new revenues will bring in about 60 million to the treasury.

"PICTURES" FOR SCHOOLS.

According to Thomas A. Edison, ten years from now text books will be as out of date in schools as already are horse-drawn vehicles on the streets and roads. "The imparting of exact information through the motion picture camera," he says, "will be a matter of course in all our schools. The printed lesson will be largely supplemental, not paramount. Undoubtedly motion pictures will be widely used in schools with good results. In the study of geography, for example, the children could learn more from 'travel pictures' in an hour than from printed descriptions of foreign countries in a week, but even so they would still need the printed geography with its historical outlines, its political divisions, its map studies, and in practically all lines the text books would still be indispensable. How could English, arithmetic, algebra, geometry, languages, etc., be learned from motion pictures, let alone reading, writing, spelling and the multiplication table?

As an aid when lectures are given in the class room motion pictures could be vastly useful through the vivid impressions conveyed, but obviously they could never take the place of text books and the memory drill involved in satisfactory recitations from these.

CONGRESSWOMEN.

From all accounts the two women Governors are both happy and hopeful at the beginning of their terms, but the same can hardly be said of the Congresswoman-elect from New Jersey, to judge from Mrs. Mary T. Norton's quoted remarks. In a recent address she expressed the fear that she would be lonely at Washington and that "Congress as constituted at present would not let her go very far." She frankly stated, moreover, that she is going to Washington "at a considerable sacrifice" and that her husband is "not at all pleased about it"—he, presumably, being of the opinion that "a woman's place is the home," not Congress. In addition to such lack of support at home, Mrs. Norton is probably in doubt as to her reception and associations in the House, notwithstanding the promises of the male members from her own state to do their best to make everything pleasant for her.

The experience of the pioneers of the sex in the same field is not exactly reassuring. Miss Janet Rankin of Montana went to Congress with great expectations, but her adventure there is said to have ended in tears. Miss Alice Robertson of Oklahoma got into the papers more and may have had a more interesting time, but neither of these spinster Congresswomen, although untroubled by husbands looking on without sympathy, accomplished anything notable or attracted much attention after the novelty had worn off. Apart from the question of their great responsibilities, the two women Governors are more fortunate in that they are supreme in their own sphere, have no rivals, and enjoy a power of independent action—whether this be employed wisely or not—which a mere Congresswoman, in the midst of hundreds of associates, may envy but cannot exercise. Mrs. Norton is wise not to expect too much.

FEWER PAPERS, MORE WORK.

It is a matter of common knowledge that during the past decade there has been a great deal of consolidation in the newspaper field, while among the smaller papers the mortality has been somewhat high due to increasing costs of operation and material. A bulletin just issued by the Bureau of the Census shows that in 1923 there were 10,267 establishments engaged in "printing and publishing, newspapers and periodicals." Turning to the U. S. Statistical Abstract we find that in 1914 there were 12,317 establishments in the country so engaged. This is a decrease of 48 per cent in the decade.

But there the known end and the guess begin, considering the industry as a whole. Comparing 1914 with 1923 it is learned that the number of wage-earners in the industry, in round numbers, increased from 114,464 to 116,000 or 1.5 per cent. The average paid in wages, however, from $88,600,000 to $126,600,000, or 122 per cent. Cost of materials increased from $129,000,000 to $363,500,000, or 181 per cent. The value of products increased from $197,000,000 to $1,268,500,000, or 155 per cent. And the value added by manufacture increased from $366,800,000 to $905,022,000, or 146 per cent.

Compared with 1921, the amount paid out in wages for 1923 shows an increase of 12.8 per cent, while the number of wage-earners increased 8.3 per cent. Cost of materials shows a slight reduction, 2 per cent, while the value of products increased almost 13 per cent. Of the above mentioned value of products, newspapers and periodicals accounted for $1,155,000,000, of which advertising made up $794,000,000, subscriptions and sales $361,000,000. Nearly 88 per cent of the establishments reporting were located in 28 States, New York leading with 1,284, and South Dakota ending with 103.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

FOOD FOR GROWTH.

You have watched the growing boy or girl at the table and have wondered just what really became of all the food they consume.

They want a second helping of everything as a rule. You are glad to see them eat, because there is usually not much wrong with a youngster who has a good appetite.

And yet as you see that their body is not as large as yours, you just try to figure that the food can't be of any real use to them.

Now what about this? Well, when you take food into you there are certain definite jobs that it does.

First and foremost, it supplies your body with "the animal heat," without which none of the processes of the body could be carried on.

The muscles must be warm, the blood and every organ needs heat in order to function properly.

This is of such importance that nearly eighty per cent of all the food you take in, is used for maintaining this heat and energy.

The foods that are used to maintain this heat and energy are the vegetables, bread, oils, fat and milk.

Then when you do heavy work and wear out parts of the body, the tissues that are worn must be replaced. This is done by meat and eggs, cereals, peas and beans.

But there is something else that must be taken care of. Nature like a frugal housewife. She likes to have something ahead, something on the shelves, and so in different parts of the body she stores up sort of reserve stock that may be used in emergencies. Nature always keeps just a little ahead of our needs.

Now the growing youngster has to have food for all the above purposes, and besides for this has one other big need for food that the adult does not have. That is the food necessary for growth.

You see an adult gets a sort of balance established between the amount of food he takes in, and the amount of waste that is cast out of his body. He is practically the same weight all the time.

But a youngster must grow. And nature has so arranged things that there will be growth, even if the food supply is insufficient. Thus you see children growing upwards, but with pale sickly faces, and weak bodies.

So don't worry about your youngster's appetite. The thing to worry about is when the appetite fails, and there is too much "picking" at food instead of the normal, healthy appetite.

Why March Is Most Dangerous

March is the most dangerous month of the year because the change of season is more than a good many systems can stand. Too often it is true that the sick "last only till spring." But if the system is fortified, if the impurities are driven from the blood, and the nerve issues fed with wholesome and strength-giving pure food medicine, there is no danger in the change of seasons.

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Invaluable as a tonic in the spring, strengthens the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter—builds up the body. It is this power that has made it so successful in treating colds and throat troubles, in weakening stimulants, morphine and other dangerous drugs.

ENLISTED MAN IS MADE COMMANDER

Frank L. Peckham, department commander of the department of the District of Columbia, is the first enlisted man to hold that position. He served as a private and corporal in the tank corps and motor transport corps in this country and in France.

Born in Philadelphia in 1898, Mr. Peckham was taken to Washington by his parents while an infant. He received the degree of bachelor of laws in 1908 and of master of laws in 1909 from the National University Law school.

At the age of eleven, he became a page in the United States senate. From 1905 to 1910 he was closely associated with Louis A. Coolidge, well known Washington newspaper correspondent. He was private secretary to Mr. Coolidge during his term as assistant secretary of the treasury under President Roosevelt. He then became an examiner in the customs division of the treasury. He resigned in 1910 to begin the practice of law.

Mr. Peckham has been very active in the affairs of the American Legion. He joined Tank Corps post No. 19 in 1919. He was senior vice commander and later commander of the post. He acted as spokesman for a special committee from the department of the District of Columbia to protest to President Harding against the release of the so-called "political" prisoners. He led the fight against a proposed appropriation for the relief of German women and children, which was defeated in congress.

Frank L. Peckham.

In April, 1924, Mr. Peckham was married to Miss Marguerite G. Kondrup of Washington. Mrs. Peckham has been an active member of the American Legion Auxiliary. She is now president of Tank Corps post's unit of the Auxiliary. Mr. Peckham, who was a delegate to the San Francisco and St. Paul conventions of the Legion, is a charter member of Vulture Lodge 174 of the Forty and Eight.

Legion's First Gun in Illegal Voting Battle

Hundreds of persons, aliens and those otherwise disenfranchised, voted at the last general election in Colorado, according to Denver American Legion officials. Many, in so casting their ballots, knew they were voting fraudulently, the Legion charges.

The Legion fired its first gun in a campaign to purge politics in Colorado when John C. Vivian, commander of the department of Colorado, conveyed to District Attorney Joseph W. Hawley of Trinidad, a request that Hawley prosecute eight alleged aliens who are charged with unlawfully exercising the rights of citizens in the last election. The Legion will probably initiate similar action in other sections of the state.

Too Busy

"Picked up my clues in that murder case yet?" asked the reporter. "Well," drawled the chief of police, as he scratched his official head, "the boys have been so busy lately on 'feral' the 'jerk' law, looking for places where they sell regular beer, keeping an eye on the 'bait' suits and 'celebrity' books and 'movies,' that they haven't had time to get started on that case."—American Legion Weekly.

"Let's go to California"

EVERY day some tired, prosperous or otherwise travel-inclined man says to his wife, "Let's go to California!" And such is the power of advertising that, although neither of them may ever have been there before, they know just how to go, approximately what it will cost, and where they will want to stay.

The same with anything you may need or want. You already know all about it, by whom it is made, what is costs, and where it is for sale. Advertising is the modern intelligencer. It keeps you informed, advises you of new things, suggests new uses for articles you already own, and prepares you today for wise and useful purchases tomorrow.

It does all this for you, almost unconsciously, during the half-hour or so you spend each day with your newspaper. Little by little—the best and surest way to learn—advertising makes you informed of what is going on in the world that is useful to you.

Read the advertisements. Get ready for tomorrow.

Schools Must Have Librarians

Board of Regents Adopts Rule Affecting Schools Having Academic Department With Enrollment of 100 or More Pupils.

According to the University of the State of New York Bulletin of the Schools, the Board of Regents has adopted a rule that after September 1, 1925, every school having an academic department with an enrollment of 100 pupils or over shall be required to establish and maintain a school library and to employ as librarian a person who has had some library training. In schools where the enrollment is between 100 and 300 at least 2 school periods a day are to be given to library work by a person holding a school librarian's one-year certificate or one of higher grade. Where the enrollment is between 300 and 500, half of the school day is to be given to library work by a person holding a three-year certificate or one of higher grade. Where the enrollment is between 500 and 700, at least 5 school periods shall be given to library work by a person holding a three-year certificate or one of higher grade. When the enrollment is between 700 and 1,000 all of the school day is to be given to library work by a person holding a five-year certificate or one of higher grade. Where the enrollment is over 1,000, all of the school day is to be given to library work by a person holding a school librarian's permanent certificate.

After September 1, 1925, any school having an academic enrollment of over 50 and less than 100 will also be required to have a trained librarian. The requirements for certificates are as follows: for the permanent certificate college graduation and a year in an approved library school; for the five-year certificate graduation from a normal school or 2 years of college work, and a year in an approved library school; for the three-year certificate, a full high school course, and a teacher-librarian course or 6 weeks in a library summer school, with 2 years of library experience; for the one-year certificate a full high school course and 6 weeks in a library summer school.

After September 1, 1925, no vacancy in the position of school librarian is to be filled in schools having an academic department with an enrollment of over 50 pupils unless the person to be appointed holds a school librarian's certificate of the appropriate grade, but no one appointed prior to January 29, 1925, shall be deprived of his position even though not possessed of a certificate.

Today We Celebrate

DRUSILLA.

Drusilla was the third daughter of Herod Agrippa, the governor of Abilene. She was married to Azizus, king of the Emessians, whom she deserted that she might marry Claudius Felix, governor of Judaea, in A. D. 53, by whom she had a son named Arippa. She was one of the most beautiful women of her age. One day Felix and Drusilla, who was a Jewess, sent for Paul and desired him to explain the Christian religion. The great Apostle, with his usual boldness, spoke on justice, chastity and the last judgment.

FIRST WHITE HOUSE WEDDING.

The first White House wedding in which the daughter of a president figured as a heroine was performed 165 years ago today, when Maria Hester Monroe, the youngest daughter of President James Monroe, became the bride of Samuel Lawrence Gouverneur. The bride was only seventeen and was very pretty and charming as she stood on an American eagle which had been woven into a flag for the occasion, before the Rev. Mr. Hanley, who was clad in knee breeches, as was the bridegroom. Only the members of the families and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony, not even the members of the cabinet being invited. It was planned to follow the honeymoon of the happy pair with a succession of balls and other festivities in honor of the young bride, but Commodore Decatur was killed in a duel soon after the wedding, and Washington was plunged into mourning.

ABOUKIR.

The strained Anglo-Egyptian relations, and the violence and uprisings that have taken place within the past two years, and in particular in the early part of the present year, bring to mind the fact that British supremacy in Egypt, not at all as old as some people think, had its beginning in the victory gained by the British over the French at Aboukir, one hundred and twenty-four years ago yesterday, March 8, 1801. A great part of the ancient country had been conquered by Napoleon a few years before. A British expedition under Sir Ralph Abercromby was sent to drive out the "invaders" (the British were themselves just as much of an invader as Napoleon) and after defeating the French the Turkish government was restored. Although the British placed Egypt under the control of the Porte the influence of England over the country gradually became more and more pronounced until eventually France had to abandon its plans for the conquest of the land of the Pharaohs. The shadowy sovereignty of Turkey practically ended in 1882, although Egypt continued to pay an annual tribute to the Sultan until the outbreak of the World War.

Substantial Gain In Enrollment

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, March 9.—In next fall's primaries no less than 3,119,439 men and women in New York state will be entitled to vote, that number having enrolled according to figures announced by Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state. This enrollment shows a substantial gain over 1923, when the totals reached 2,497,819, and in 1920, when 2,759,971 voters enrolled.

Republicans to the number of 1,778,051 enrolled last fall, Democrats numbering 1,284,407 and Socialists 61,981. The registration last fall in New York state was 3,887,554, while the vote for governor amounted to 3,355,618. In but one county in the state last fall did the Republican enrollment fall below 1923, while the Democratic enrollment slumped in 23 counties, but made up this loss by gains in centers of large population.

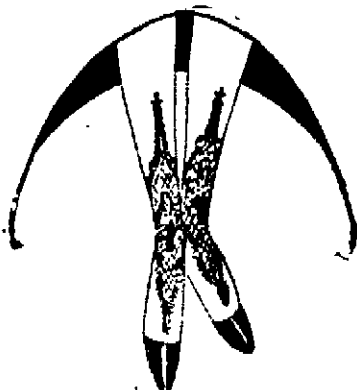

Ulster county's enrollment shows 8,293 Democrats, 18,014 Republicans and 170 Socialists.

MATTERS OF OBSERVATION.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

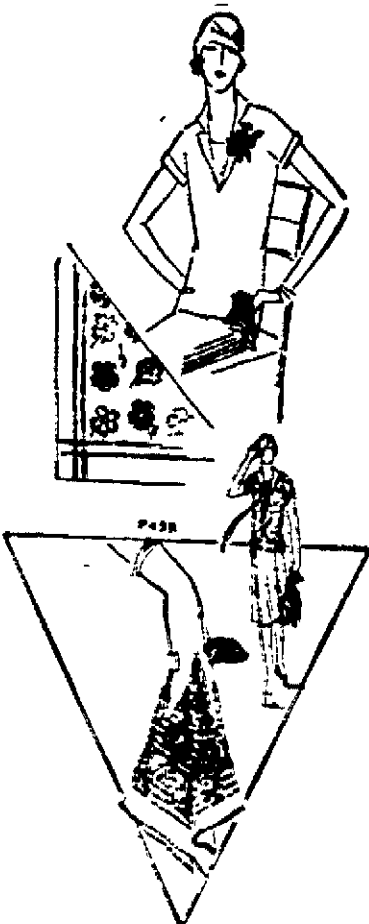

In sports circles there is considerable interest in stockings, and in heavy silk in a knitted effect. Smart women approve this novelty in white or colors, and favor also lisle and fine wool hose which are clocked in color.

One naturally expects a change of heart or mind concerning stockings, since it is more or less tiring to have the entire world wearing light hose. Among the smartest people, there is a tendency to introduce slate and gunmetal gray stockings, not quite so revolutionary as black, but tending toward dark footwear.

It is certain that tans and browns will be a springtime favorite, and with dark tailors and town clothes, stockings which match the brown of the shoe are highly approved. The reappearance of the smartly tied bow, in lieu of a buckle, is another foot note to jot down for future reference.

With the dance frock, it has been observed of late that some women sponsor stockings which match the frock, providing the frock is of a pale rather than bright tint. Pale orchids, peach, and such tones having such vogue for evening, they may readily be matched to hose and also to satin slippers, if these seem preferable to silvered ones. It is a matter really of individual preference, since as many women wear plain silvered kid or brocade as those that year plain satins.

With dancing slippers under consideration, comes a memory of a charming dance frock made of the new ombre chiffon which has been treated with silver scales and pearl beads. The shaded foundation of the chiffon makes a stunning background for heading, and, of course, reverses interest in the faded gown. Satin frocks with bands of alternating rubies and emeralds are also very chic.

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

When the Piutes Rode the War Trail

Life was never dull in Nevada in the sixties. If there wasn't trouble among the rough characters of the silver mining camps, the Piute Indians could always be counted upon to lift a few scalps and burn some cabins. Early in 1890 they had been so active that the settlers had to appeal to California for help.

Several hundred volunteers immediately rode over from the gold camps to help their silver-mining brethren. But more important was a force of 150 regulars from Alcatraz island, led by Capt. Jasper Stewart of the Third artillery and Capt. E. F. Flint of the Sixth infantry, which took the field and forced the nucleus for a force of 800 men that kept after the Indians until they were brought to bay near Pyramid lake. There a three-hour battle was fought on June 3, and the Indians were defeated.

The soldiers remained in the region until the middle of July and put in their time by building Fort Churchill on the Carson river, 35 miles below Carson City. This fort was the most important of several that were built in the territory and when the Piutes broke out again in 1892 it was made military headquarters for the Third California volunteers, under the command of Colonel Conners, commandant of the military district of Utah and Nevada. For the next six years the Piutes kept up a desultory warfare and expeditions were constantly being sent out from Fort Churchill against them so that it is no overstatement to say that the settlement of Nevada might have been delayed for many years but for this fort.

Fort Churchill is also noted for its connection with another historic occasion. It was on the route of the Pony express and one day when "Pony Bob" Haslam, one of the riders, arrived at Fort Churchill, the man who was to carry the pouches on to the next station was unable to go. So "Pony Bob" took his place and this resulted in his famous ride of 390 miles with scarcely 11 hours rest from the time he started until his job of "getting the mail through" was done, over every mile of which he was in constant danger of death.

By 1872 the troubles with the Piutes were definitely over, the Pony express was a thing of the past, the garrison at Fort Churchill was withdrawn and its career as a protector of an infant state was at an end. (© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Uses Proxy "Wife" to Win Chicago Divorce

One of the queerest marital tangles ever heard was aired in a Chicago divorce court before Judge Rahath. James Grippando and his wife were separated and Grippando wished to marry Helen Frederick. But Mrs. Grippando showed no desire to free him by way of the divorce court. Grippando, however, got Helen Frederick to pose as "Mrs. Grippando" and sue him for divorce, alleging desertion. In court, Helen, as "Mrs. Anna Grippando," testified that her "husband" had deserted her two years before. Grippando mounted the witness stand and admitted the charge. In the hope that the court would grant the divorce and he might marry Helen, Grippando was sentenced to 30 days and Helen Frederick to 10 days in jail for contempt of court.

"INDIVIDUALITY OF DRESS"

The Woman with Broad Shoulders Should Choose Raglan Sleeves

The woman who is large through the shoulders and bust should plan wear as many dresses and coats with raglan sleeves as possible. This style of sleeves works wonders when it comes to disguising the size of the shoulders and the bust. The raglan effect seems to do away entirely with that "bumpy" effect which the woman with broad shoulders dreads.

Your Last Name

IS IT CRUGER?

CRUGER has been so thoroughly naturalized as a surname in this country that it does not always occur to one that it is a name of German origin. The name is said to have originated in Germany from the Latin, meaning cross bearer, but it has generally been spelled Kruger rather than Cruger. Another authority, however, has it that this is simply a surname of occupation derived from the German word meaning innkeeper.

It is said that the family of the Barons von Cruger are distinguished from the untitled bearers of the name in their use of the initial C instead of K, and the fact that the American family has always spelled the name with the C is taken as one evidence of descent from the baronial family. Besides this there is a well-established and persistent tradition in the family to this effect—and such traditions are well worth heeding.

The first of the name here and the founder of the family was John Cruger who came from Germany before 1700 and settled in New York city. He was a prominent merchant and man of wealth, and from all records was looked upon as a man of cultivation and position. He became mayor of New York, a position which was also held by his son, John Cruger.

The original John Cruger had four children: Maria, who married a Cuyler; Henry, John and Titman. Titman died young, unmarried, and John, though he became mayor of New York and lived to make a fortune, as a merchant, and was first president of the New York chamber of commerce, never married either.

Henry, though he spent some time in Bristol, England, married in this country and is the ancestor of all the American Crugers. His children were John, who married a De Lancey; Henry, who took up his residence in Bristol from which city he was member of parliament; Titman who lived in Curacao, Nicholas who married Anne, daughter of the Comte de Nully of Santa Cruz, and after her death Anne Markoe of Santa Cruz, and two daughters.

Bunker—it is said that the oldest form of this name is Bonquer or Boncoeur, a French adjectival surname meaning good heart.

The Appleton Family

Mr. Lyander John Appleton
Mrs. Lyander John Appleton
Miss Daysey Mayme Appleton
Master Chauncey Devere Appleton

EVER since he could comprehend what they were talking about, Chauncey Devere Appleton has been told that he was an ungrateful boy. "You are an ungrateful boy not to want bread and butter," his mother has said, "when the children in India are crying for it."

Mrs. Lyander John Appleton calls herself a worm in her prayers, but it is her honest opinion that she is a good deal of a bird.

Lyander John Appleton is such an old-fashioned man that his first thought in every emergency is to light the fire and put the kettle on. The day that Daysey Mayme got word that her first lover had gone back on her, and while she was trying to decide whether she would become a Nemesis or pine away to the tomb and send word to him from her deathbed that she forgave him, Lyander John disappeared, and was found later in the kitchen, where he had lighted the fire and put the kettle on.

Daysey Mayme Appleton has been engaged for the past three weeks in writing a poem on "True Friendship." She refuses to give out any advance sheets, but the drift of her theme is that the "Rock of Ages" is a treacherous bulk compared with "True Friendship."

Rob Woman of $40,000 in Jewels

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 9.—The $40,000 in jewels Mrs. Fay Perkins wore in a Broadway supper place attracted considerable attention early today. She returned home a few minutes before 4:30 o'clock. The front door bell rang. When she answered it three masked men with revolvers faced her. A man who had escorted Mrs. Perkins home was bound and gagged. Mrs. Perkins screamed. A robber hit her with his revolver. While she was unconscious she was robbed.

The robbery of Mrs. Perkins followed a series of such holdups of women who had worn a fortune of gems to cafes and had been followed home by thieves. Police records contain among numerous others the names of Edith Bobb, wealthy milliner; Louise Lawson and Dot King, both show girls and both killed by the men who stole their jewels.

When Mrs. Perkins regained consciousness she summoned police. Meanwhile she unbound her male escort, who, police said was not her husband.

In addition to taking Mrs. Perkins' jewelry, the three robbers searched the apartment and took other articles of value.

The robbers tipped Mrs. Perkins' jewelry from her person ruthlessly. First went her necklace and diamond bracelet. Then one of the thieves tried to remove her rings with his teeth because they held fast to fingers. He bit one of her fingers, causing her to utter the scream that resulted in a gun butt blow on the head.

Later police said they had ascertained that her companion gave his name as Milton Abbott and his vocation as that of a cotton broker. He and Mrs. Perkins, who is separated from her husband, a cafe owner, had visited a theatre last night, police said, and later went to a night club. They arrived at her apartment late in the morning and had been there about half an hour when there came a summons at the door.

$50,000,000 Tax Deductions Wrong

Testimony Before Senate Investigating Committee That Government Lost Through Acceptance of Copper Companies' Valuation Claims.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, March 9.—Testimony that the government has lost more than $50,000,000 in erroneous tax deductions to big copper interests has been presented by treasury experts before the senate committee investigating the bureau of internal revenue. It was declared today.

Heaviest losses to the government were from the Anaconda Copper Company and the Inspiration Copper Company, L. C. Manson, special committee prosecutor, testified. This resulted from the treasury accepting the copper companies' valuation claims.

In its tax returns for 1917 and 1918, the Anaconda Copper Company claimed a valuation of $184,152,965 although John A. Grimes, chief of the metals valuation section of the internal revenue bureau, said this amount should have been only $54,865,822. The company, he said, received a big saving in taxes when the treasury permitted a valuation of $185,713,192.

The Inspiration Copper Company claimed a valuation of $62,214,806. Grimes reported it should have been only $17,292,764, but the treasury allowed $92,134,730 as a tax basis, said Manson.

"The other words, they ignored Grimes' valuation?" asked Senator Coughlin.

Manson replied in the affirmative. Valuing property at a greater figure than it is actually worth, results in a tax saving in figuring depletion allowances.

Manson also charged the treasury was losing vast sums annually through unscientific methods in checking returns and allowing deductions for depletion, amortization and similar deductible items.

Similar losses to the government have resulted from large oil companies, according to A. F. Pay, consulting engineer for the committee, who said oil concerns had "set up a valuation for depletion purposes which is absurd in the extreme."

When Pedagogues Kicked

Scotland's army of schoolmasters in the year 1782 sent a memorial to parliament pointing out that while their average income was £13 a year that of a plowman was £14 a year.

No relief was granted until 1802, when the Schoolmasters' act was passed, and their income was legally fixed at "not under 300 marks (£18 13s. 4d) nor over 400 marks (£22 4s. 6d)." The heritors had also to provide a house, "which need not contain more than two rooms, including the kitchen, and with ground for a garden or not more than a quarter of a Scots acre, or two bolls of meal as its equivalent." They were highly indignant at being obliged to "erect palaces for domineers," but legal compulsion could no longer be ignored. Thereafter, conditions were at least good enough to prevent schoolmasters from resigning their office to become headless—as had actually happened during the darkest days.

System Among Birds

Warblers, kinglets, chickadees, nuthatches and creepers while working through the branches in quest of insect prey, keep up an incessant piping as they need apply their sharp eyes only to the problem of catching game. Their ears tell them just where their nearest neighbor is located. In this way much confusion is avoided. A bird does not crowd upon his neighbor; he picks fresh territory to hunt and all the while he can keep in touch with his fellows.

Only in the Willows

A characteristic distinguishing the Willow family from practically all others is that both the pollen-bearing and the seed-producing flowers are arranged in drooping tassels, says "Tree Habits" from the American Nature association. Numerous other trees have their pollen-bearing flowers arranged in this fashion, but in no other family are the seed-producing flowers also grouped in this distinctive way.

Perfectly Safe

"I was afraid my sermon last Sunday would bring some of my people but it didn't," said the clergyman.

"What was your subject?" asked his friend.

"The Propriety of the Average Man and I spoke pretty freely."

"You couldn't stand on any corner that night. Twenty times I considered myself above the average."

Protein Mixture for Young Pigs

Supply Must Not Only Be Ample in Amount, but Also of Right Quality.

Pigs grow rapidly and require an abundant supply of protein in their rations to supply building materials for this rapid growth. This protein must not only be ample in amount, but must be of the right quality, advises A. L. DuRant, assistant animal husbandman, at Clemson college, who states that many of our protein feeds, such as wheat middlings, linseed meal, soy-bean meal, peanut feed or germ oil meal, along with corn, do not make an efficient ration for young pigs not on pasture. These proteins are from plant sources and do not make a well-balanced ration with our grains. Good pasture would improve these rations.

Efficient Rations.
On the other hand, Mr. DuRant explains, skim milk, buttermilk, whey, tankage and fish meal, proteins from animal sources, make efficient rations, when fed along with the grains. These proteins are well balanced in composition and are rich in the amino acids, which are deficient in the grains. But these feeds are usually scarce or high in price. Mixtures of the proteins from plant source and those from animal sources along with our grains have given good results, even better than animal protein alone.

At Clemson college the pigs on a mixture of half fish meal and half soy-bean meal in sufficient amounts to balance a ration of corn gained 1.80 pounds per pig per day and cost $6.66 per 100 pounds gain, while those on corn and fish meal gained 1.68 pounds per pig per day and cost $6.36 per 100 pounds gain.

Economical Mixture.
At the Wisconsin station a mixture of half tankage and half linseed meal with corn has proved decidedly more economical than tankage alone for pigs on pasture. That station also found that the addition of 5 per cent of chopped alfalfa improved the ration of corn and tankage for pigs in dry lot.

The Iowa station has found that pigs on pasture made slightly more rapid gains when fed a mixture of 40 to 50 parts of tankage and the balance corn germ meal along with corn, than when fed only tankage and corn.

Nine trials at other stations show that for hogs averaging over 100 pounds, meat middlings added to corn and tankage increased the gains, but for young pigs it did not make much improvement. By using these mixtures of protein feeds the costs of producing pork can be materially reduced.

Damaged Clover Fields

Will Produce Hay Crop
Clover fields that have been damaged or destroyed by freezing may be used to produce a good crop of hay by thickening the stand with oats, barley or sweet clover, or by plowing the land and planting an emergency crop of soy beans, sorghum, sudan grass, millet or oats and Canada peas.

If the stand of clover is very much thinned out or barley may be seeded at the rate of three or four pecks per acre with a disk drill in April or early May and cut with the clover for hay when the grain is in the milk stage. Sweet clover sown with the grain will furnish pasture after the hay is harvested.

Where the clover is nearly all killed out a good crop of hay may be grown by plowing the land, drilling three to six pecks of soy beans to the acre, or seeding sorghum at the rate of fifty pounds broadcast or ten pounds in rows. Oats and Canada field peas are seeded in April at the rate of 1½ bushels each per acre, and if cut when the oats is in the dough, make excellent hay.

Mammoth Clover Yields

Biggest Yield of Seed
Mammoth clover usually gives a little larger yield of seed than medium or June clover. There is usually very little difference in the price secured per bushel for medium and Mammoth clover seed.

The first crop of Mammoth clover is harvested for seed. However, it is advisable, in early June, to clip or pasture the field in order that the amount of vegetative growth may be held in check. This practice usually increases seed production.

Mammoth clover is approximately two weeks later than June clover, so that the clipping made in early June will not be large enough for hay. If the season is somewhat backward and the growth produced is short, it is not advisable to clip or pasture.

Timely Suggestions on

Poultry Given by Iowa

The following suggestions are offered by the poultry department of the Iowa State college extension service, at Ames, Iowa.

See that the mash droppers are well supplied and feeding properly.

See that the birds are supplied with a sufficient amount of clean water.

Feed milk in warm form to all birds. Call out doubtful birds continually. Look out for symptoms of disease. Feed some form of green food when the hens are confined.

For the chickens' sake, don't over-tend the hen.

Don't worry too much over other people's flocks; apply just thought to improve your own.

Woodworkers' Triumph

By cutting oak trees into boards and shipping in such a way that the original bark form is maintained, German and Polish timber dealers supply cabinetmakers of Sweden with wood that permits the marketing of the panels of each piece of furniture.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 9.—The stock market was reactionary today and price trends were generally downward, but the session was as near an approach to the so-called "trademark" market as has been seen in a month or more. Stocks were clustered around without any particular destination in view; specialties were sent forward to new high levels by some energetic pools, but the main body of stocks, including the high priced industrials, equipments, oils, etc., were sold at concessions of a point or two from Saturday's close and in some cases registered a loss of 10 points from last week's high.

The effect of the tightening of the money market was seen as the day advanced. In order to make up for the decline in reserves as shown in last week's clearing house statement, the local banks called about $20,000,000 in loans secured by stock exchange collateral today. Though call money rates opened at 3½ per cent, they were moved up to 4 and 4½ per cent by noon. In the fourth hour the rate was advanced to 5 per cent. Preparations for Federal income tax payments was also a factor.

British and French exchanges were again irregular, with the franc losing about five points.

Selling broke out again after the advance of call money to 5 per cent and the lowest prices of the day were recorded in Baldwin and American Locomotive, American Can, American Car and Foundry, Texas Gulf Sulphur, United States Steel, etc. The motors were also reactionary in this period. General Motors at 72½ sold at the lowest price since the stock was put on a 6 per cent dividend basis. The Maxwell and Willys stocks sold at new high prices for the year before encountering much pressure.

Oil stocks failed to gain; rails were inactive and mostly reactionary. Wilson & Company preferred stock dropped to 31, compared with Saturday's high price at 60.

Clinton Avenue Five Broke Even

Saturday afternoon the Clinton Avenue Seniors traveled to Poughkeepsie and suffered defeat on the "Y" court from the Hedding Street quintet, a team that has captured the leading honors in the Sunday School League in past seasons. In this "run-away" game, which terminated in a 50-11 score, Hyatt collected six of the local boys' total.

The Seniors are confident of turning the tables on this fast team in a game to be staged on the local court in the near future.

Returning home that evening the Clinton Avenue boys evened up their record by defeating the Albany Avenue boys by a 42-27 total. Snyder and Hyatt did the best scoring for the Clinton five, totaling 17 and 15, while Brown scored 12 for the losers.

During the first half this game was evenly contested, ending in a 13-12 total in favor of Clinton Avenue. In the second half the C. A. Seniors determined that one defeat a day was enough and started on a spurt which gave them the 15 point advantage.
